sels have already sailed for home ports. The bark Helen Mar sailed on the 4th, with a full cargo of domestic exports, for Boston. The ship Elena sailed on the 10th for Bremen, taking one of the heaviest cargoes of produce that has left this pert for years, including about 120 tons of rice, 550 caks of oil, and other articles mentioned below. The Georg & Ludwig also sailed on the 8th for the same port. Our trade with Germany would appear to be largely on the increase when large ships as these find full freights out and back.

The burk Young Hector, which arrived on the 5th, 19 days from San Francisco, brought a small cargo only. The British ships Anne Mary from San Francisco, and Jasper from Victoria, both came to load oil-the former for New London, and the latter for Bremen. . The whaleship Isaac Howland is taking oil on Vreight and will return to New Bedford. Whalers' exchange is dull at previous quotations; Gold at last telegraphic dates from New York was quoted at

Market and the second s

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 12. It has pleased His Majesty the King to appoint the Hon. Charles Gordon Hopkins to be the Minister of Finance. We congratulate Mr. Hopkins upon the honor conferred and the confidence reposed in him by the Sovereign; we congratulate the country upon the accession to the Cabinet of a member possessed of so thorough and vital a knowledge of the condition and wants of the country, and whose political views, often expressed, stamp him as a sound and liberal statesman. With the return of Mr. Wyllie to his official duties in the Foreign Department, and with the appointment of Mr. Hopkins to the Financial Department, the cabinet is now complete as to numbers, and, we hope, will now occupy itself with elaborating a policy to be laid before the next legislature, to still further develop and preserve national health and

To the prudent management of the late Acting Minister of Finance, H. R. H. P. L. Kamehameha, is undoubtedly due the present prosperous condition of the Treasury and the excellent credit of its bonds. It will be, we hope, the pleasant task of Mr. Hopkins to increase this favorable state of affairs.

Never in the political history of this kingdom has there been an announcement of any government appointment which has fallen with such a sudden shock on the public ears, as that conveyed in the above notice, taken from the Polynesian-never one where hopes in the future progress and prosperity of the islands were so suddenly drowned by reluctant fears. In the language of the Earl of Chatham, spoken eighty years ago, every one could say-" I cannot, my lords, I will not join in congratulation on misfortune and disgrace. This, my lords, is a perilous and tremendous moment. It is not a time for adulation and rejoicing. The smoothness of flattery cannot save us in this crisis." We will not lend our pen to join in the adulation and flattery of the Government organ, when such language is uttered; but speak the truth, though offending, as did the Earl of Chatham, his own government.

That there has been a Minister of Finance needed here—that the interests of the kingdom have loudly called for a wise man of acknowledged fitness and ability, to devise and carry out plans for the improvement of our commerce, our agriculture and our mechanics-a man possessed of that talent, financial ability and public confidence, which point him out as the proper one to preside over the treasury department-has too long and too keenly been felt in every part of the kingdom. For six weary years this want has

On the appointment of the late Treasurer, Mr. Gregg, to that position, few who knew his qualifications, thought that he was fitted to act as Minister of Finance. A brilliant Lawyer, he was withal a poor financier. Yet all such feelings were waived, and the incumbent was permitted to prove his capacity or incapacity for the place. Scarce two years passed before he came in open collision with the merchants, the press and the best interests of the kingdom, and through four years, they struggled along, hoping against hope, till our revenue was reduced, our credit weakened, and the finances left in a pitiable plight with a debt of over $120,000. And when, after the voice of the people was raised in one unanimous vote against him in the Legislature, he retired from the office, the nation again breathed free, and it was felt that no management was for a season better than mismanage-

Thus fourteen months have passed without a Minister of Finance, H. R. H. Prince Lot superintending the affairs of the department as well as his other duties might allow, until we have the announcement that the Hon. Charles G. Hopkins is appointed to that office. With the incumbent personally, the public may have no objections; but between that and fitness and ability for the right and wrong, who knows no more of law know, for roaches especially are a great nuisance in than a day laborer, would evoke the just indignation of every good and loyal citizen; but can any less indignation be excited on the appointment of a gentleman, who, whatever his qualifications may be for other positions, has never had the necessary financial experience or shown the ability to manage the finance department. We well know that qualified men are not so abundant here as in older countries; but we equally well know that there are men in every respect fitted and enjoying public confidence, who might be induced to preside there.

This appointment is particularly unfortunate, because it tends to create ill-feeling if nothing worse, between the foreign population and the Government, which should do no act that tends to alienate the good will of any portion of the people; but on the other hand, in all its appointments should aim to strengthen its position, by the selection of the wisest and the best officers,-men who are not only qualified for the duties they have to perform, but are possessed of such public confidence and standing that they may bring to the office honor and credit, instead different qualities are to be selected for all public offices, simply because they are favorites or of a certain nationality and creed, we may bid adieu to prospective peace and progress. A feeling of distrust in the stability of the government will be created, which will check the introduction of foreign capital, and even drive away much that is seeking investment here.

It cannot be denied that public and private interests have suffered during the past few years, from the slack management of government affairs. There has been a lack of administrative energy and ability shown in the executive departments-not simply in the finance but the other departments as well, which has shaken public confidence, reduced our foreign commerce and the business of our principal ports, and created a feeling of distrust among business men, and insecurity in real estate, which is in every country, and ought to be here, deemed the best security in the world. There is a want of " brains and business talent" in the cabinet, and until these all-important requisites are possessed, the people can hope for little or no improvement. There are many who think that Prince Lot is not in a position worthy of his title, nor one that does him honor, when holding the post of a Minister. A higher and more honorable station should be assigned to the heir of the throne, and such a position only can secure him from the petty censure and animosity which fall to the lot of a public officer. Some person of suitable administrative qualifications might make his department a busy workshop, devising and carrying out internal reforms and improvements in every part of the kingdom where needed.

We said that the lack of administrative ability in the cabinet creates a want of confidence in what ought to be the best security-real estate. This is too true. There has searcely been a sale of real estate for months, which has not been attended with loss to its owner. Not long since a vacant lot sold on the corner of Beretania and Richards streets for $450, which cost its former owner over $1750 some eight years ago,-a loss of $2700, reckoning interest at 10 per cent. The property of the late Mr. Brewer sold at auction for about one-third what it cost him. That of the late Dr. Robinson, which sold about a year ago for $1200, and was thought a bargain, has lately been resold for $800, a decline of 33 per cent. in one year. The property of the late Mr. Thomas sold for about one-third its cost. These are merely a few among numerous instances showing the decline of real property, which ought to be the very best security, and which in other countries generally advances in value from year to year.

There are causes for this, and it is the duty of our government to inquire seriously what they are. It is not right that property-holders suffer losses arising from a want of ability in the administration of the government. In many ways, able and industrious ministers might advance the general prosperity of the people, promote industry and thrift among the nativesif they themselves were men of activity and influence. But men of the opposite stamp can not originate nor plan such measures, and if they did their personal influence is not such as to enable them to carry them out successfully-they lack " brains and business talent."

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

ARCTIC EXPLORATIONS - Every few years an expedition starts from the Atlantic, through Baffin's Bay, in search of the open Polar Sea, which is supposed to exist at the North Pole. Every attempt thus far has proved a failure. Now it may not be generally known that our whalers in cruising for whales in the Arctic, frequently go as far north as 732 30', as was done the past summer, which is prohably within ten degrees of that open sea, if it exists. This route seems to be by all odds, the most feasible one, if further search is to be made. An expedition could accompany a whaleship from this port, well fitted with everything deemed necessary for the undertaking, and when the ship reaches the most northerly point possible, the adventurers might proceed on over the ice or otherwise as they might choose. Though many hardships must be endured, with great risk of life, yet we presume some ambitious adventurers will turn up, who are willing to incur any hazards for the glory of inscribing their names in the temple of fame if not on the North Pole itself. If nothing else can lead to its discovery. a reward of five or ten thousand dollars for a piece of the North Pole would be sure to send some roving Yankee in search of it, if he had to subsist on hope deferred during his voyage.

The monthlies for October were received by the last packet. The Electic has a life like picture of Capts. Speke and Grant, the discoverers of the source of the Nile, who recently returned to England, and whose graphic accounts of their adventures in search of it, have been read with so much interest. This magazine for October contains the narrative. Hurper's Monthly opens with a thrilling account of the first voyage of the Monitor Passaic, which must convince every one that iron-clads of every kind are nothing better than monster coffins. A safe ironclad ship, fit for sea-service, does not yet exist, the French and English iron ships being no better seagoing vessels than the American. The Atlantic Monthly abounds as usual in choice articles, all worth reading. "Our Domestic Relations" by Charles Sumner, is alone worth a year's subscription.

BUGS AND THEIR ANTIDOTE .- A correspondent calls our attention to the fact that coal oil is a ceroffice there is a wide distinction. To appoint a | tain antidote to bugs and insects of every kind and man to sit as Chief Justice and adjudge between | class. This is a fact which house keepers should many houses, and in many vessels also. It is said that bedbugs-the very mention of which is a terror to most house keepers, are also on the increase. For them as for everything else, we are assured by one who has tried it, that coal oil is no humbug. Speaking of the virtues of coal oil, we see it stated that the crude petroleum (coal oil before it is refined) is found to be one of the best applications for wounds and bruises of every description, and is being extensively used in the American army. No remedy has been found equal to it. It is also said to be a sure cure for rheumatism.

> THANKS .- We are under obligations to Capt. M'Intyre for Victoria papers per ship Jasper. Also to Capt. Babcock for his attentions in sending our express ashore at Waikiki, and thence overland, on the arrival of the Anne Mary, thus delivering it about one hour earlier than it otherwise would have been received

OUTSIDE .- On the first page will be found a letter from our San Francisco correspondent. On the last page is an interesting account of the revolution in of taking these virtues from it. If men of in- | Madagascar, resulting in the death of King Radama.

FROM VICTORIA .- The British ship Jusper arrived on Sunday from Victoria, V. I., by which we have a few daily papers of the 22d and 23d ulto. There was great excitement in Victoria on account of gold dig. gings reported to have been discovered on the island some thirty miles from the port. The accounts state that the sand in the bed of a creek yielded from 5 to 10 cents of gold to a pan, and that the quartz rock might yield $15 or $16 to the ton. We hope that the discovery of gold on Vancouver will prove more correct than did its discovery in Koolau some months ago. Should it prove true, our prospectors should not despair, and may yet find gold or some metal better

- The several vessels that sailed from this port in September, for Victoria, had all arrived over. The N. S. Perkins beat the Domitila some eight days. The latter vessel was advertised again for Hono'ulu via Alberni, where she was going to obtain a cargo of lumber. One of the papers has the following item

FOR SANDWICH ISLANDS .- Messrs. Janion Green & Rhodes, have put the handsome steel schooner Domitila on the berth for Honolulu, for which port she will have immediate dispatch. The passenger accommodations are excellent.

Governor Douglas has been created a knight by Queen Victoria, and will hereafter be known as Sir James Douglas. He has served long and faithfully in his distant post, and undoubtedly merits the honor

DROWNED .- Mr. P. Hanson, a foreigner residing at Hanalei, Kanai, was drowned on the 30th of October. He and another foreigner went to bathe during the afternoon of that day, and while sporting in the surf he lost control of himself, was carried under the water, and disappeared. It is thought the strong under-current swept him out to sea. Search wos made to find his body, but without success

THE SHIP JOHN COGGESHALL .- Our readers will probably remember this vessel, which touched at our port last May, to procure medical assistance for the small-pex, then prevalent on board. Last Friday, she arrived from the Ochotsk Sea, and we are happy to learn from Captain Dean that every vestige of sickness disappeared in two weeks after her departure hence. On Friday she was boarded by our port physician, Dr. Ford, and was immediately permitted to enter the harbor.

SAFE IN SAN FRANCISCO, -The new hose carriage ordered by Pacific Hose Company No. 1 of this city. arrived in San Francisco October 21, per ship David Crockett, in 110 days from New York. It may be expected here by the Yankee, about the 25th inst. We think the members of the company have reason to congratulate themselves, that it has eluded the vigilance of the Confederate pirates.

A CLIPPER WHALER.-The brig Zoe was sold at auction on Thursday last for the sum of $8725, and purchased by Capt. Thomas Long, late of the Isaac Howland. The Zoe is being rapidly fitted up for a cruise on the California coast, and is just the craft for the business. Until this season Capt. Long has invariably met with good fortune in whaling, and we trust his good luck may return, now he has a vessel

EQUESTRIAN.-The lovers of fast horses will have an opportunity this evening of seeing how easy it is to tame a horse, when one knows how to do it. Prof. Belew will give an exhibition and lecture, at the E. KRULL, KAUAI. Commercial Hotel-doors open at 74, performance at Employment Wanted.

November 1, 1863. (389-1m.)

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVING been left without employment, and with a large family, wishes some business which will afford them a support. Having in early life been engaged in a store, and on a large farm connected with it, and for the last nineteen years in teaching and other labor with natives, he is prepared to undertake translating, book keeping or other mercantile labor, teaching or superintending native labor. Please address, C. B. ANDREWS, NEWS STEALERS .- If there is anything shows a man's meanness, it is the act of stopping his newspaper, saying he can't afford it or because it does not suit his views, and then on the return of each publication day, calling regularly at his neighbor's to read or borrow his paper, and forgetting to return it. We have heard of the existence of such small souls in other places, but never knew till lately that they were to be found here. If this is not " petty thieving," what is? The law can't reach them, but the quill can.
